

Joint Working Paper Series

on

Institutional Competition between Common Law and Civil Law

No. 09/ 01

Methodological Issues in Economic, Political and Sociological Comparisons of Common Law and Civil Law

Michèle Schmiegelow

October 2009

This working paper is also part of the working papers series of the CRIDES under the number 2009/6

Joint Working Paper Series of the Centre de Recherche Droit, Economie et Société (CRIDES), the Institut de recherche économique et social (IRES) and the Centre d'Études sur les conflits et crises internationaux (CECRI) of the Université catholique de Louvain with the support of :

Place Montesquieu, 1/5 B-1348 Louvain-la-Neuve
Téléphone (32 10) 47 41 30 Fax (32 10) 47 46 03
Email : michele.schmiegelow@uclouvain.be

Place Montesquieu, 2 B – 1348 Louvain-la-Neuve
Téléphone (32 10) 47 47 59 Fax (32 10) 47 47 57
Email : yves.decordt@uclouvain.be

Methodological Issues in Economic, Political and Sociological Comparisons of Common Law and Civil Law

Michèle Schmiegelow

Abstract:

The “comparative quality” of common law and civil law has become an issue of policy, since La Porta, Lopes-de-Silanes, Shleifer and Vishny (LLSV) have asserted that common law countries enjoy better governance and economic performance than civil law countries. Influencing the methodology of the “Doing Business” Reports of the World Bank and the country analyses of rating agencies, LLSV affect the creditworthiness of transforming and developing countries and hence cast doubt on assistance to legal reforms in these countries from civil law sources. This paper surveys the methodological issues, which LLSV have raised in arriving at their assertion. Reviewing their methodology requires meeting them in the interdisciplinary arena of political theory, sociology and economics, which they have chosen, while extending it to the disciplines of institutional economics, comparative law, legal history and philosophy of science, which they have neglected.

Michèle Schmiegelow
Professor of Political Science
Département de sciences politiques
Université Catholique de Louvain
Bâtiment J. Leclercq B243
1348 Louvain-la-Neuve
Belgium

Tel: +32-10-47 41 30

E-mail: michele.schmiegelow@uclouvain.be

“Access to this document is restricted. For download information please contact the author(s) of this paper directly. For further information about this working paper series please contact Catherine.vanderlinden@uclouvain.be. For information on the project “Institutional Competition between Common Law and Civil Law in Developing and Transforming Countries” contact Brigitte.Ancion@uclouvain.be or Francoise.Welveart@uclouvain.be”.