

The CEMS global alliance continues to dominate Financial Times Master's in Management ranking

CEMS MIM ranks n°2 in the world and remains n°1 on combined international results

PARIS, FRANCE, 20th September - Results of the just-published ranking confirm that the CEMS Master's in International Management meets the needs of a highly international and mobile student cohort, enabling them to gain employment very soon after graduation in the sector of their choice.

A collective success for the CEMS MIM and the CEMS alliance

The CEMS MIM is this year ranked the n°2 pre-experience Master's in Management in the world in the global Financial Times ranking, closely followed by 9 member schools in the top 25. 18 CEMS member schools appear in total, continuing the omnipresence of the CEMS alliance, its Master's in International Management programme and its member schools in the ranking.

The CEMS MIM emerges once more as the n°1 programme for combined international results (international faculty, student and board diversity, alumni mobility and international course experience) and features in joint-top position in the 3-year ranking. The CEMS MIM has permanently featured in the top 3 since the creation of the ranking in 2005. This provides further confirmation of the long-term success of the programme.

Meeting the international career aspirations of students

The CEMS MIM improved in 6 categories of the ranking compared with the 2009 edition, including an "Aims Achieved" score of 83% and an "Employed at three months" score of 99%. It was also ranked 4th in the world for international course experience and 5th for international mobility. These results are a particular source of satisfaction for CEMS Executive Director François Collin:

"It is especially pleasing to see that the needs and ambitions of CEMS MIM students are being satisfied. A recent independent survey identifies international career opportunities as the key criterion for students choosing to take our programme. The Financial Times result confirms that they are achieving their professional aims very soon after graduation".
