FILO1BA - Information

Learning outcomes

The objective of the bachelor's programme is to provide the foundations in the studies of Philosophy and give a first complete initiation into the philosophical universe. Upon completion of the three years of the bachelor's programme, the student will, in fact, have acquired :

1. A solid knowledge of the foundations in Philosophy from a two-fold angle : from that of its historical roots (by studying the great philosophers, past and present) and from that of its principal disciplines (Logic, Epistemology, Ethics, Metaphysics, Anthropology, etc.).
2. A first initiation into the work and scientific research in philosophy by means of special exercises, supervised tasks, guided individual work and the end of cycle assignment.
3. Insight into related subject areas : Letters, History, the Arts and Sciences.
4. An academic training in other indispensable tools, such as languages (English, German, Dutch or Spanish) and computers.

Teaching method

The School of Philosophy (EFIL) focuses especially on pedagogy during the Bachelors.

Finally, oral presentations are an opportunity for students to learn public speaking and to prepare for oral exams which may be rather new for them in first year.

Students will in 3rd year demonstrate their ability to carry out significant research for the first time in philosophy by writing a bachelor's paper. They will show their ability to master a philosophical subject and discuss it in an informed and coherent manner.

They must also correctly use research tools consistent with existing scientific conventions, argue and discuss in a correct, clear and structured manner, present the results of their research and defend their findings before a committee composed of their supervisor and reader.

Thus, the study programme offered aims to foster :

1. A progressive orientation : the bachelor's programme in Philosophy goes from the most general to the most specific. The actual philosophical part of the programme, whilst being quite significant from the outset, is reinforced in a gradual way. This, in fact, enables the student to allow his study choice to evolve, giving him, if he so wishes, the opportunity to re-orientate his course in the most favorable of conditions.
2. An active pedagogical approach : by encouraging the student to play an active role in his own learning, by encouraging him to personally put into practice the knowledge and tools he has acquired and the information he has received during the course. This is one of the main aims of the bachelor's programme of Philosophy. This becomes much more concrete in the practical sessions that the student will have to participate in and the pieces of work that he will have to produce. It is here that he will learn how to read and analyse philosophical texts and present them and comment on them with clarity and precision, as well as drafting reports and written pieces of work relating to the subject.
3. Interdisciplinarity : sound academic training in Philosophy involves an opening into other domains of knowledge and culture. Therefore, the bachelor's programme in Philosophy also covers an ensemble of courses related to non-philosophical subjects. In particular, the student will need to choose a "minor" from a domain other than Philosophy. That minor, which will be followed in the second and third years of the bachelor's programme, corresponds to 30 credits and may be chosen from any other faculty of the University, in accordance with the personal ambition of the student and subject to the approval of the faculty in question.

Evaluation

Depending on the nature of the course and the teaching methods, the evaluation will take different forms. Some courses will involve oral and/or written evaluations (held during one of the three exam sessions: January – June – August/September), whilst the evaluation of seminars will involve more substantial student participation as well as assessment of individual course work. Evaluation methods will be explained at the beginning of each course.

Those exams relating to courses on communication skills will evaluate the student's level, i.e. the practical use of the language in relevant situations.

Teaching methods are evaluated in accordance with the current University regulations (see General regulations concerning examinations  ). Students may also find additional information regarding the evaluation of courses in the course description.

Mobility and/or Internationalisation outlook

As of the 3rd year of the bachelor's programme, students can benefit from Erasmus mobility. Yet it may prove preferable to reserve this opportunity for the 2nd cycle, since each student can only benefit from the advantages of Erasmus mobility once during his studies. In this context, another possibility for mobility is offered to 3rd year baccalaureate students which in no way impedes the possibility of their having recourse to Erasmus mobility in the 2nd cycle. This involves the student mobility agreement existing between the Institut supérieur de philosophie and the Hoger Instituut voor Wijsbegeerte of KULeuven, which last organises a baccalaureate programme in philosophy in Dutch and in English. For all information, cf. the administrative secretariat of the faculty.
